PREFACE

The general plan of this book is based on the bibliographies which have preceded it in the series, but certain departures have been made, in accordance with what appeared to be the particular demands of the matter to be presented. The division-headings are, however, self-explanatory, so that it seems unnecessary to say anything further here as to the contents and arrangement, and we may proceed at once to the acknowledgments which, in common with all other bibliographers, the compiler of this book owes to the many persons who have helped him in his labors.

To his predecessors in the field of Thoreau bibliography, first of all, the compiler owes a great debt, especially to Dr. Samuel Arthur Jones, whose admirable "Bibliography of Henry David Thoreau," published by the Rowfant Club of Cleveland in 1894, virtually complete as far as it goes in all the most important particulars, the present writer at the beginning of his work made a sort of base of operations for his own campaign. Further assistance of the same kind was also obtained from the bibliography by Mr. John P. Anderson of the British Museum, appended to Mr. Salt's Life of Thoreau.

The books and periodicals examined were mainly found in the great public and semi-public libraries of Boston, New York, and Cambridge. A large part of the work was done at the Boston Public Library and the Boston Athenæum, frequent visits were made to the Harvard University Library and the Massachusetts State Library, and many hours were spent in the Public Library at Concord, Massachusetts, and in the Lenox and Astor Libraries and the Columbia University Library in New York, to all of which institutions the compiler is grateful, not only for the usual privileges of readers, but in many cases for special kindnesses and attentions. In particular he desires to thank Mr. William C. Lane of the Harvard Library and Miss Kelley of Concord for favors extended to him. To three private collections also the compiler is under heavy obligations. Mr. Stephen H. Wakeman of New York, whose collection of first editions of Thoreau is a particularly interesting and valuable one, and who is now the fortunate possessor of Thoreau's original manuscript journals, has been very kind and helpful. To Mrs. J. Chester Chamberlain of New York the compiler is grateful for the privilege of examining the Thoreau material contained in the collection of the late Mr. Chamberlain. Mr. Herbert W. Hosmer of Concord, Massachusetts, the present owner of the Thoreau collection made by his late brother, Mr. Alfred W. Hosmer, has very hospitably permitted the compiler to spend many hours with his collection, which is especially rich in biographical and critical matter concerning Thoreau, — a department which is ignored by most collectors. Grateful thanks must also be extended to the Misses Hosmer of Concord for many kindnesses, and to Mr. Edwin B. Hill of Lakeland, Michigan, Colonel Thomas Wentworth Higginson, Mr. Charles E. Goodspeed, and the Rev. George Willis Cooke for assistance in various ways. Mr. Luther S. Livingston, besides permitting the use of the Thoreau matter printed in his "American Book-Prices Current," has been kind enough to supply the record of this year's sales in advance of the publication of his 1908 volume, and in other ways has been helpful.

The compiler is especially grateful to three gentlemen who have had the kindness to read his proofs and make valuable suggestions, — Dr. Samuel A. Jones, the author of the earlier bibliography before mentioned, whose hearty coöperation has been a source of great satisfaction to the compiler and whose friendly letters have been a spur to his spirits; Mr. Patrick Kevin Foley of Boston, known to all American book-collectors, whose keen but genial criticism has been especially helpful; and Mr. F. B. Sanborn, who has not spared of his intimate and extensive knowledge of Thoreau and his works in assisting the compiler to make this book as complete and accurate as possible. Finally, the compiler owes a debt of gratitude to Mr. George B. Ives, not only for special assistance in various ways, but most of all for the many valuable suggestions obtained from a study of his excellent Bibliography of Oliver Wendell Holmes, which has been at once the admiration and the despair of at least one of his successors in this bibliographical series. Thoreau's magazine contributions and other fugitive pieces were so few, however, and Mr. Sanborn and others have been so diligent in searching them out, that it was not to be expected that any such interesting discoveries could be made in that department of Thoreau bibliography as were possible in the case of Holmes. The compiler, therefore, has nothing new to offer the reader here, but he has been at some pains to bring together all the published information in regard to Thoreau's writings which the works themselves offer and which his biographers, and especially Mr. Sanborn, have given us. To these biographers, it is needless to say, this book owes much of whatever interest it may have.

The relation of Thoreau's more formal works to his Journal is somewhat peculiar, and perhaps demands a word of explanation in this Preface. The Journal, begun in 1837 and continued until within a few months of his death, was not merely a chronicle of his daily doings: it was the record of his daily thoughts also, and it contained the first drafts of all his writings. The natural course followed by each literary product was in the order of journal entry, lecture, magazine article, and book publication. Not every individual piece of writing went through all the stages, but the beginning was always in the Journal. Of course the Journal was not all used in this way: much of it remained at his death still undrawn upon. Nor is the original draft of every one of his writings still to be seen, for Thoreau destroyed many pages of the Journal in the making of his books and essays. Enough is left, however, to show his methods of work, and readers may, with the help of the footnotes in the published Journal, readily compare for themselves the first drafts with the finished product, and learn the circumstances under which any given passage was originally written. The interrelations of the Works and the Journal are frequently noted in the pages of this bibliography.

NOTE ON THE FRONTISPIECE AND OTHER PORTRAITS OF THOREAU

THE portrait reproduced for the frontispiece of this volume is a daguerreotype hitherto unpublished, taken in June, 1856, by Benjamin D. Maxham of Worcester, Massachusetts. A comparison with the full-face portrait which has been reproduced so often as to have come to be the most familiar representation of Thoreau proves that the two daguerreotypes were taken at one sitting. The wrinkles in coat and waistcoat and the tying of the cravat are identical, though the hair is somewhat smoother in this new one, and pose and expression are different. This is the daguerreotype sent by Thoreau to Calvin H. Greene of Rochester, Michigan, in 1856. It was accompanied by the following letter, which is reproduced in facsimile herewith: —

CONCORD Saturday
June 21st '56.

DEAR SIR

On the 12 ult[1] I forwarded the two books to California, observing your directions in every particular, and I trust that Uncle Sam will discharge his duty faithfully. While in Worcester this week I obtained the accompanying daguerreotype, which my friends think is pretty good, though better looking than I.

[1] Thoreau habitually wrote "ult." for "inst." when referring to an earlier day in the current month. (See Editor's Preface to the Journal.)

HENRY D. THOREAU.

Thoreau's correspondence with Greene was first printed in "Some Unpublished Letters of Henry D. and Sophia E. Thoreau," by Dr. Samuel A. Jones, to whose kindness the compiler of this Bibliography is indebted for the privilege of reproducing the daguerreotype and the letter, both of which are now in Dr. Jones's possession. That volume also gives some account of the circumstances attending the transmission of the daguerreotype. It seems that Greene had asked Thoreau for his picture, and had also ordered copies of the "Week" and "Walden" sent to his brother in California. Having heard that Thoreau was poor, he enclosed five dollars and requested him to keep the balance "for his trouble"! The change, however, came back with the picture.

Besides this one there appear to be five portraits of Thoreau from the life, — two other daguerreotypes taken at the same sitting, in June, 1856; a crayon drawing by Samuel W. Rowse, made in 1854 and now hung in the Concord Public Library; and two ambrotypes taken by Dun-shee in New Bedford for Mr. Daniel Ricketson in August, 1861. From one of these last and from personal recollection Mr. Walton Ricketson made an excellent medallion in profile, which has been reproduced in the "Familiar Letters" and elsewhere. The medallion deserves to rank with the original portraits, for Mr. Ricketson knew Thoreau well and seems to have been very successful in getting a likeness. Mr. Sanborn says that "it alone of the four likenesses extant shows the aquiline features as his comrades of the wood and mountain saw them, — not weakened by any effort to bring him to the standard of other men in garb or expression."

The daguerreotypes were taken during one of Thoreau's visits to Worcester, at the instance of his friends H. G. O. Blake and Theo. Brown. So far as can now be ascertained, but three were taken, two of which went to the Worcester friends, while the third was sent to Mr. Greene. Mr. Blake's has been reproduced a number of times, and is probably the only one published hitherto. It is now in the possession of Mr. Edward Harlow Russell of Worcester. Mr. Brown's is now owned by his son, Mr. William T. Brown of the same city, through whose kindness the writer has been permitted to examine it. It is practically identical in appearance with the Blake negative.

The Dunshee ambrotype — the two are so nearly identical in pose, expression, and detail that they may be treated as one — deserves to be better known than it is. It has only once been satisfactorily reproduced, however. That was in "Daniel Ricketson and his Friends," where it appeared in photogravure. The portrait pleased Thoreau's family greatly. In sending it to Miss Thoreau soon after the death of her brother, Mr. Ricketson wrote: "When I heard of your brother's death, I went to the artist who took the picture and got a duplicate of the one I had for you. I send you the strongest impression, the first taken. The one I keep is a little lighter in color, which led me to choose it, but I now see the stronger expression in yours. If you were here, I should like for you to take your choice. We all consider it very life-like and one of the most successful likenesses we ever saw. What is rather remarkable is that it shows scarcely at all Henry's loss of health, suffering deeply as he was at the time it was taken, from his disease." Miss Thoreau wrote in reply: "Until a few weeks since I did not know that Henry had his picture taken when in New Bedford last; he accidentally spoke of it, and said that you considered it a good likeness. None of his daguerreotypes have pleased us, and I did not imagine that the ambrotype would afford us much satisfaction; still I felt curious to see it, thinking I might get a copy of yours in case we liked it. I need not tell you, for I cannot, how agreeably surprised I was on opening the little box, to find my own lost brother again. I could not restrain my tears. I discover a slight shade about the eyes expressive of weariness, but a stranger might not observe it. I am very glad to possess a picture of so late a date. The crayon drawn eight years ago this summer we considered good; it betrays the poet. I always liked it. Mr. Channing, Emerson, Alcott, and many other friends who have looked at the ambrotype express much satisfaction."

There are tintypes in existence taken from this ambrotype and passing for original portraits of Thoreau. The writer has not learned who is responsible for them. Mr. Walton Ricketson writes that he has no knowledge of them, and that but two ambrotypes were made in New Bedford, one of which is in his possession, while the other was the one sent by his father to Miss Sophia Thoreau. The latter is now in the collection of the Concord Antiquarian Society. Mr. Ricketson also states that two exposures were made at the sitting, Dunshee retaining one negative and turning the other over to Mr. Daniel Ricketson. The first negative was the one afterwards sent to Miss Thoreau. So that both of the ambrotypes are original portraits, taken directly from the sitter.[1]

In discussing the portraits of Thoreau, mention must also be made of a full bust by Mr. Walton Ricketson, which was reproduced in photogravure in "Daniel Ricketson and his Friends," and of a crude but amusing pencil sketch made by Mr. Daniel Ricketson and reproduced in the same volume. This sketch was inscribed, "H. D. Thoreau as he presented himself at the door of Brooklawn, Dec. 25th, 1854. Age 37," and it represents Thoreau with hat, umbrella, and travelling-bag, as he appeared in making his first visit to Ricketson in New Bedford. It is not, of course, a serious attempt at portraiture. The bust was evidently modelled after the Rowse crayon, and represents the younger Thoreau, the Thoreau whom the sculptor, then only a boy, first met at his father's house, but with even more of youthful vigor than was his at that time. It is a conception of Thoreau the poet, and is naturally a somewhat idealized portrait.

[1] In the pages of this Bibliography, portraits are frequently described as "the Maxham daguerreotype," "the Dunshee ambrotype," etc. Reference in the former case is usually, if not always, to Mr. Blake's daguerreotype; where an ambrotype is mentioned, the Concord ambrotype is to be understood, except in the case of the one reproduced in Daniel Ricketson and his Friends.

The fact that the familiar daguerreotype has sometimes been reproduced without reversing — thus showing the subject as he appeared in his mirror but not precisely as his friends saw him — has given rise to the belief that two daguerreotypes have been reproduced, but the writer has been unable to find more than the one portrait, reproduced directly or reversed as the case might be. It is therefore a peculiar pleasure to be able to publish for the first time this portrait which has hitherto been unknown to most readers and admirers of Thoreau.

By Henry D. Thoreau."

The book is bound in cloth and lettered in gilt on back A Week | on the | Concord and | Merrimack | Rivers | Munroe & Co.

A thousand copies were printed at the author's risk. Of these 75 were given away and 219 sold by Munroe, and the remaining 706 returned, October 28, 1853, to the author, who succeeded in disposing of a few of them himself. Thoreau's account of his receipt of the unsold remainder has often been quoted, but for completeness' sake should be reprinted here. The Journal for October 28, 1853, contains the following entry: —

"For a year or two past, my publisher, falsely so called, has been writing from time to time to ask what disposition should be made of the copies of 'A Week on the Concord and Merrimack Rivers' still on hand, and at last suggesting that he had use for the room they occupied in his cellar. So I had them all sent to me here, and they arrived to-day by express, filling the man's wagon, — 706 copies out of an edition of 1000 which I bought of Munroe four years ago and have been ever since paying for, and have not quite paid for yet. The wares are sent to me at last, and I have an opportunity to examine my purchase. They are something more substantial than fame, as my back knows, which has borne them up two flights of stairs to a place similar to that to which they trace their origin. Of the remaining two hundred and ninety odd, seventy-five were given away, the rest sold. I have now a library of nearly nine hundred volumes, over seven hundred of which I wrote myself. Is it not well that the author should behold the fruits of his labor? My works are piled up on one side of my chamber half as high as my head, my opera omnia. This is authorship; these are the work of my brain. There was just one piece of good luck in the venture. The unbound were tied up by the printer four years ago in stout wrappers, and inscribed, —

H. D. Thoreau's
Concord River
50 cops.

So Munroe had only to cross out 'River' and write 'Mass.' and deliver them to the expressman at once. I can see now what I write for, the result of my labors.

"Nevertheless, in spite of this result, sitting beside the inert mass of my works, I take up my pen to-night to record what thought or experience I may have had, with as much satisfaction as ever. Indeed, I believe that this result is more inspiring and better for me than if a thousand had bought my wares. It affects my privacy less and leaves me freer."

Under date of November 20, 1853, he records how at one time he had considered speculating in cranberries as a means of raising money to pay his debt to Munroe. The settlement was finally made November 28 and he then placed twelve copies of the Week with Munroe on sale. He goes on to say: "I have paid him directly out of pocket since the book was published two hundred and ninety dollars and taken his receipt for it. This does not include postage on proof-sheets, etc., etc. I have received from other quarters about fifteen dollars. This has been the pecuniary value of the book." A memorandum in the Journal states that he "sent Fields 12 copies of the Week, Oct. 18th, '54," a little over two months after the publication of Walden. It was not until 1862, however, that Ticknor & Fields put their imprint on the book, as appears in the next title. Meanwhile Thoreau continued to sell the book from time to time from the stock he had carried into his attic. A copy recently sold in New York for $60 was originally bought from Thoreau by Miss Sarah E. Sanborn in April, 1855, for $1.25. The demand was slight, however, and but few copies were thus disposed of.

By a blunder in the printing-office three lines were dropped out at the bottom of page 396. Thoreau wrote in the missing lines in pencil whenever he sold a copy of the book, and a number of such copies are in existence. The bulk of the edition, however, both those bearing the date 1849 and those with the 1862 title-page, lack this correction.

A Week on the Concord and Merrimack Rivers was made up largely — probably almost entirely — from Thoreau's Journal from the period of his earliest journalizing in 1837 up to the time of the completion of the manuscript, which was probably in 1847. Many Journal passages used in writing the book are printed in the Journal as issued in the Walden Edition and indicated there by footnotes, but the great bulk of them were destroyed by Thoreau in the making of the book. Many of the poems appearing in the Week and a few prose essays embodied therein had first found publication in The Dial, and these will be found noted in the list of Dial articles and poems on pp. 64–68.

It was long after the Week was completed before Thoreau found a publisher for it, but he appears to have made certain emendations in it in the interval. The essay on Friendship incorporated in the "Wednesday" chapter was added at this time, as appears from an entry in Mr. Alcott's diary under date of January 13, 1848, where he says that Thoreau had that day read him an essay on Friendship which he had just written.[1]

Among the most interesting copies extant of this first edition of the Week are those in the possession of Mr. Stephen H. Wakeman of New York. They include the copies once belonging to William Cullen Bryant, Nathaniel Hawthorne, H. G. O. Blake, and Ellery Channing, — the last very fully annotated by that most intimate friend of Thoreau's. Mr. Paul Lemperly of Cleveland, Ohio, owns a copy bearing the author's inscription to his sister and containing corrections by Thoreau and notes by Sophia Thoreau.

The copies with this title-page are of the first edition, rebound. The binders omitted to remove the leaf announcing the future publication of Walden. An article by Dr. S. A. Jones telling the story of these volumes in a playful way appeared in The Inlander, a magazine published by the students of the University of Michigan, and is quoted by Dr. Jones in his Bibliography of Thoreau.

and p. 2 a list of Thoreau's books. On p. 8 appears for the first time a quotation of four lines from Ovid, with a translation. There are also two new quotations from the Robin Hood Ballads on the "Monday" half-title and its back. This edition was printed from new plates. It contains two unfortunate misprints, — "souls" for "stools," p. 273, third line from bottom, and "interrupt" for "interpret," p. 414, line 12, — which persisted in the Riverside Edition, but were corrected in the Manuscript and Walden editions. Later impressions of this edition were issued in 12mo size. See Addenda.

WALDEN

WALDEN; | OR, | LIFE IN THE WOODS. | By Henry D. Thoreau, | Author of "A Week on the Concord and Merrimack Rivers." | [Cut of

Thoreau's hut at Walden Pond] | [Motto] | Boston: Ticknor and Fields. | MDCCCLIV.

16mo, pp. 357. Map of Walden Pond facing p. 307. Collation: 1, title; 2, copyright and imprint (Stereotyped at the Boston Stereotype Foundry); 3, contents; 4, blank; 5–357, text.

On p. 87, following the first chapter, are lines from T. Carew headed "Complemental Verses." (The dates of the advertisements at the end of the book cannot be regarded as of serious importance. At a recent sale, however, a copy having advertising dated April, 1854, brought a much higher price than one with advertising dated May, 1854, and this in spite of the fact that the book itself was not published till August of that year!) The book was bound in cloth and lettered on back Walden | Life in the Woods | Thoreau | Ticknor & Co.

Walden, like the Week, was written largely if not almost entirely in Thoreau's Journal before it was made into a book, and the writing was by no means confined to the years he spent on the shore of Walden Pond, though the bulk of it was done there. The Journal entries incorporated in Walden date from at least as far back as 1839 and extend to within a few months of the publication of the book. Many of them are to be found in the Journal as published, but most of them, especially of those belonging to the Walden period, were destroyed in making the copy for the book. The lines beginning "Light-winged Smoke, Icarian bird" were published in The Dial for April, 1843, under the title of "Smoke," but nothing else in the book appears ever to have been printed before.

Walden was published August 9, 1854. The first reprinting seems to have been in 1864.

Mr. Paul Lemperly of Cleveland, Ohio, has in his possession a copy of Walden formerly belonging to Thoreau himself, which contains many interesting corrections and annotations made by the author. Several transcripts of these notes are in existence. Dr. S. A. Jones and Mr. E. B. Hill have copies, and there is another in the office of Houghton Mifflin Company. Such of these corrections as are merely typographical have been embodied in the latest impression of the Riverside Edition of Walden. Among these is the alteration of the word "post" to "port" on page 24 (Riv. Ed. p. 35). Of the other annotations, two of the most important from the point of view of natural history are the correction of "single spruce" to "double spruce" on page 137 and of "white spruce" to "black spruce" on page 217.

WALDEN. Edinburgh: David Douglas. London: Hamilton, Adams & Co. 1884.

Post 8vo, pp. 357.

This edition, which, as nearly as can be judged from the evidence at the compiler's command, was issued under the joint imprint indicated above, is doubtless simply the American edition with a new title-page. It was published in April, 1884, and was the first edition of Walden to appear under an English imprint.

THE SAME. | With an Introductory Note by Will H. Dircks. London: Walter Scott, 24 Warwick Lane, Paternoster Row. 1886.

Square 16mo, pp. xxviii, 336. In the Camelot Classics, edited by Ernest Rhys.

The first original English edition. An appendix gives a selection from the Week and three of Thoreau's poems.

THE SAME. With an Introductory Note by Will H. Dircks. London: Walter Scott. Toronto: W. J. Gage & Co. 1888.

Square 16mo. Printed from the same plates as the 1886 London edition.

THE SAME. In the Riverside Aldine Series. Boston: Houghton, Mifflin & Co. 1889.

2 vols. 16mo, pp. 1–259, [i–vi], 261–514.

The first six pages of vol. i are made up of front matter. A small first edition was issued with uncut edges and paper label.

EXCURSIONS

EXCURSIONS. | By | Henry D. Thoreau. | Author of "Walden," and "A Week on the Concord and | Merrimack Rivers." | [Device] | Boston: Ticknor and Fields. | 1863.

16mo, pp. 319; steel portrait. Collation of front matter: 1, blank; 2, advertisement of Thoreau's Writings; 3, title; 4, copyright and imprint (Riverside, Cambridge: Stereotyped and printed by H. O. Houghton); 5, contents; 6, blank.

CONTENTS:—

Biographical Sketch, by R. W. Emerson, 7–34.
Natural History of Massachusetts, 37–72.
A Walk to Wachusett, 73–96.
The Landlord, 97–108.
A Winter Walk, 109–134.
The Succession of Forest Trees, 135–160.
Walking, 161–214.
Autumnal Tints, 215–265.
Wild Apples, 266–306.
Night and Moonlight, 307–319.

Pages 35 and 36 are the half-title "Excursions" and its blank back. The portrait is from Rowse's crayon. The book was bound in cloth and lettered on back Excursions | by | H. D. | Thoreau. | Author of | Walden | and | A Week on | Concord | River. | Ticknor & Co.

Excursions was formerly often listed under the title of "Excursions in Field and Forest." The last four words were merely explanatory, however, and never appeared on the title-page. The papers composing the book were collected by Miss Sophia E. Thoreau from various sources. "Natural History of Massachusetts" and "A Winter Walk" first appeared in The Dial, "A Walk to Wachusett" in the Boston Miscellany, "The Landlord" in the Democratic Review, "The Succession of Forest Trees" in the New York Tribune, and "Walking," "Autumnal Tints," "Wild Apples," and "Night and Moonlight" in the Atlantic Monthly.

EXCURSIONS | By | Henry David Thoreau | [Device] | Boston and New York | Houghton, Mifflin and Company | The Riverside Press, Cambridge | MDCCCXCIV [1893].

Crown 8vo, pp. x, 472. Vol. IX of the Riverside Edition. With Introductory Note (4 pp.) and index.

CONTENTS:—

A Yankee in Canada.
Natural History of Massachusetts.
The Landlord.
A Winter Walk.
A Walk to Wachusett.
The Succession of Forest Trees.
Walking.
Autumnal Tints.
Wild Apples.
Night and Moonlight.
May Days.
Days and Nights in Concord.

It will be noticed that this book differs materially in contents from the book originally published under this title. The Biographical Sketch is omitted (transferred to the volume entitled Miscellanies), and the long narrative of the Canadian excursion and two papers composed of extracts from Thoreau's Journal are added. These last papers had been printed in the Atlantic and Scribner's respectively. "A Yankee in Canada" had formerly been published in a volume with Anti-Slavery and Reform Papers.

EXCURSIONS | By | Henry David Thoreau | Cambridge | Printed at the Riverside Press | 1894 [1893].

8vo, pp. x, 472. Vol. IX of the Large-Paper Edition.

THE MAINE WOODS

THE MAINE WOODS | By Henry D. Thoreau, | Author of "A Week on the Concord and Merrimack Rivers," | "Walden," "Excursions," etc., etc. | Boston: | Ticknor and Fields. | 1864.

16mo, pp. [vi], 328. Collation: List of Thoreau's Writings; [i], title; [ii], copyright and imprint (University Press: Welch, Bigelow, and Company, Cambridge); [iii], [note]; [iv], blank; [v], contents; [vi], blank; 1–304, text; 305, half-title; 306, blank; 307–328, Appendix. 23 pages of advertising at end.

CONTENTS:—

Ktaadn, pp. 1–84.
Chesuncook, pp. 85–160.
The Allegash and East Branch, pp. 161–304.
Appendix:—

I. Trees, pp. 307, 308.
II. Flowers and Shrubs, pp. 308–311.
III. List of Plants, pp. 312–320.
IV. List of Birds, pp. 321, 322.
V. Quadrupeds, p. 322.
VI. Outfit for an Excursion, pp. 322, 323.
VII. A List of Indian Words, pp. 324–328.

Edited jointly by Sophia E. Thoreau and William Ellery Channing. The note on p. [iii] reads:—

"The first of the papers following was published in 'The Union Magazine' (New York), in 1848; the second, 'Chesuncook,' came out in the 'Atlantic Monthly,' in 1858; and the last is now for the first time printed."

The book was bound in cloth, and lettered on back The | Maine | Woods | by | Thoreau. | Author of | Walden | and | A Week on | Concord | River | Ticknor & Co.

The paper entitled "The Allegash and East Branch," as well as the Appendix, was not entirely prepared for the press until after the author's death, and it suffers from careless editing.

LETTERS TO VARIOUS PERSONS

LETTERS | TO VARIOUS PERSONS. | By | Henry D. Thoreau, | Author of "A Week on the Concord and Merrimack Rivers," | "Walden," etc., etc. | [Device] | Boston: | Ticknor and Fields. | 1865.

16mo, pp. [vi], 229. Collation: List of Thoreau's Writings; [i], title; [ii], copyright and imprint (University Press: Welch, Bigelow & Co., Cambridge); [iii], Editor's Notice, signed R. W. E., 12 May, 1865; [iv], blank; [v], contents; [vi], blank; 1–207, Letters; 208, blank; 209, half-title; 210, blank; 211–229, Poems.

The Editor's Note reads: —

"It may interest the reader of this book to know that nearly all these letters have been printed directly from the original autographs furnished by the persons to whom they were addressed. A few have been carefully copied, but without alteration, from the worn and torn originals. In some letters, passages have been omitted, on account of private or personal references. Otherwise, the letters have been printed as they stood, with very few verbal corrections."

The nine poems included are: —

Sympathy.
"Romans, Countrymen, and Lovers."
Inspiration.
The Fisher's Boy.
Mountains.
Smoke.
Smoke in Winter.
Mist.
Haze.

The book is bound in cloth, lettered on back Letters | by | H. D. | Thoreau | Author of | Excursions | and | A Week on | Concord | River | Ticknor & Co. The letters were collected and edited by Ralph Waldo Emerson.

The Last Days of John Brown, pp. 278–286. (Printed in The Liberator for July 27, 1860, as part of a report of a memorial meeting held at North Elba, N. Y., July 4, 1860, where this address was read by the Secretary.)

The book was bound in cloth, and lettered in gilt on back A | Yankee | in | Canada | By | Thoreau. | Author of | Walden | and | A Week on | Concord | River | Ticknor & Co.

EARLY SPRING IN MASSACHUSETTS

EARLY SPRING IN MASSACHUSETTS. | From the Journal of | Henry D. Thoreau, | Author of "A Week on the Concord and Merrimack Rivers," | "Walden," etc. | [Motto] | [Device] Boston: | Houghton, Mifflin and Company. | The Riverside Press, Cambridge. | 1881.

12mo, pp. viii, 318. Collation: i, title; ii, copyright and imprint; iii–vii, Introductory, signed H. G. O. Blake; viii, blank; 1–318, text.

Thoreau's sister Sophia, who inherited his manuscript journals, bequeathed them upon her death in October, 1876, to her brother's friend and correspondent, Harrison

G. O. Blake of Worcester, Mass. Mr. Blake wished to bring the thoughts imbedded in the Journal before the public, and judged that a selection from the abundance of material was the most practicable way to accomplish his end. His arrangement of the selections is explained in his introduction to this first volume that he compiled. "In reading the Journal for my own satisfaction, I had sometimes been wont to attend each day to what was written on the same day of the month in some other year; desiring thus to be led to notice, in my walks, the phenomena which Thoreau noticed, so to be brought nearer to the writer by observing the same sights, sounds, etc., and if possible have my love of nature quickened by him. This habit suggested the arrangement of dates in the following pages, viz., the bringing together of passages under the same day of the month in different years. In this way I hoped to make an interesting picture of the progress of the seasons, of Thoreau's year." This method of treating Thoreau's journals had been suggested some years earlier by Mr. Alcott in his Concord Days (1872).

EARLY SPRING | IN MASSACHUSETTS | From the Journal of | Henry David Thoreau | Edited by H. G. O. Blake | [Motto] | [Device] | Boston and New York | Houghton, Mifflin and Company | The Riverside Press, Cambridge | MDCCCXCIV [1893].

POEMS OF NATURE

POEMS OF NATURE | By Henry David Thoreau | Selected and Edited by Henry S. Salt | and Frank B. Sanborn | [Device] | Boston and New York | Houghton, Mifflin & Co. | London: John Lane | The Bodley Head | MDCCCXCV.

16mo, pp. xx, 122. Collation: i, ii, blank; iii, half-title; iv, blank; v, title; vi, blank; vii–ix, contents; x, blank; xi–xix, Introduction; xx, blank; 1–122, text.

The Introduction says: "The fifty poems here brought together . . . are perhaps two thirds of those which Thoreau preserved. Many of them were printed by him, in whole or in part, among his early contributions to Emerson's Dial, or in his own two volumes, the Week and Walden, which were all that were issued in his lifetime. Others were given to Mr. Sanborn for publication, by Sophia Thoreau, the year after her brother's death (several appeared in the Boston Commonwealth in 1863); or have been furnished from time to time by Mr. Blake, his literary executor."

FIRST AND LAST JOURNEYS

THE | FIRST AND LAST JOURNEYS | OF | THOREAU | Lately discovered among his unpublished journals | and manuscripts | Edited by | Franklin Benjamin Sanborn | [Device] | Boston: MDCDV | Printed exclusively for members of | The Bibliophile Society.

2 vols. 8vo, pp. xxxix, 146, 134. With portrait (from Dunshee ambrotype) and facsimiles of Thoreau's manuscripts. Prefatory Note signed H. H. H. Introduction by F. B. Sanborn. Addendum in vol. I; index in vol. II.

A considerable part of the first volume appears in substantially the same form in the Week and the Journal. This book was not actually distributed till 1907. The "first journey" is the one on the Concord and Merrimac Rivers described in the Week; the "last" is the trip to Minnesota with young Horace Mann in 1861. There are also fragments of the Staten Island journal of 1843 and a part of an essay on Conversation. The Addendum to vol. i consists of various fragments of journals and other writings, including a number of poems not otherwise published. The manuscripts, consisting of fragments of Thoreau's original journals, drafts of essays, and rough pencil notes, are the property of Mr. W. K. Bixby of St. Louis.

Following is a list of the verse contained in vol. i:—

Morning: "Thou unconverted Saint," p. xiv.
Another form of the bit of verse beginning "An early unconverted Saint" printed in the Week, containing four additional lines.

"Upon the bank at early dawn," pp. xvi, xvii.
Nine four-line stanzas.

The Breeze's Invitation: "Like two careless swifts let 's sail," p. 51.
Four five-line stanzas. The complete poem in six stanzas appears in Journal, vol. i, p. 86.

Epitaph on Pursy: "Traveller, this is no prison," pp. 81, 82.
A part was used in the Week in somewhat altered form in the lines beginning "Here lies an honest man."

Epitaph on the World: "Here lies the body of this world," p. 82.

"Heathen without reproach," p. 122.
Eight lines. Another form of "Morning," cited above.

To the Mountains: "And when the sun puts out his lamp," p. 123.
Twenty-two lines.

Fog: "Dull water-spirit and Protean god," p. 126.
Ten lines. Another form of the poem beginning "Low-anchored cloud" used in the Week.

The Friend: "The great Friend," pp. 126–128.
Forty lines.

The Battle of Life: "How little curious is man," p. 129.

Twenty-six lines. This poem with two additional lines appears in Journal, vol. i, pp. 459, 460.

The Threadbare Trees: "The threadbare trees so poor and thin," p. 130.

Three four-line stanzas. The third stanza was used in the poem "Inspiration."

"Until at length the north winds blow," p. 132.

Four lines.

The Virgin: "With her calm, inquiring eyes," p. 134.

Eight lines.

Solitude: "We walk in Nature still alone," pp. 134, 135.

Thirty-two lines. This appears in somewhat different form as the latter part of the poem "To a Marsh Hawk in Spring," in Journal, vol. i, pp. 472, 473.

"Love equals swift and slow," p. 136.

Four lines. Printed in the first edition of the Week, p. 285.

True Freedom: "Wait not till slaves pronounce the word," pp. 137, 138.

Eleven four-line stanzas.

Our Neighbors: "The respectable folks," pp. 139, 140.

Twenty-five lines. Another form of the poem in the Week.

"My ground is high," p. 140.

Four lines. The same with four additional lines appears in Journal, vol. i, p. 245.

"If from your price ye will not swerve," pp. 140, 141.

Ten lines. This appears in Journal, vol. i, pp. 245, 246.

Independence: "Ye princes, keep your realms," p. 141.

Four four-line stanzas. A different form of the poem of this title printed in the Commonwealth and in Poems of Nature and Excursions, and Poems.

A Winter and Spring Scene: "The willows droop," pp. 144–146.

Eighty-two lines. A longer and otherwise different form of "A Winter Scene" as published in Poems of Nature, p. 90.

SIR WALTER RALEIGH

SIR WALTER RALEIGH | By | Henry David Thoreau | Lately discovered among his unpublished journals | and manuscripts | Introduction by | Franklin Benjamin Sanborn | Edited by | Henry Aiken Metcalf | [Device] | Boston: MDCDV | Printed exclusively for members of | The Bibliophile Society.

8vo, pp. xiv, 106. With portrait of Raleigh. Preface signed Henry Aiken Metcalf. Introduction and Notes by F. B. Sanborn.

Written, the Introduction states, between 1842 and 1845, probably for The Dial. (See, however, pp. 115, 116.) Though bearing the date 1905, the book was not actually distributed till 1907. This essay appears in small part in the Week and in the first volume of the Journal. The manuscript is owned by Mr. W. K. Bixby of St. Louis.

JOURNAL

THE WRITINGS OF | HENRY DAVID THOREAU | JOURNAL | Edited by Bradford Torrey | I [II–XIV] | 1837–1846 [other dates in other volumes]. [Device, red] | Boston and New York | Houghton Mifflin and Company | MDCCCCVI.

8vo, pp. lii, 488; (II) xii, 505; (III) xii, 487; (IV) xii, 495; (V) xii, 532; (VI) x, 491; (VII) xii, 527; (VIII) x, 468; (IX) xii, 503; (X) xii, 511; (XI) xii, 457; (XII) xii, 458; (XIII) x, 430; (XIV) x, 459. Vols. VII–XX of the Manuscript Edition. Collation of Vol. I: i, half-title "The Writings of Henry David Thoreau, in twenty volumes, volume VII;" ii, "Manuscript Edition, limited to six hundred copies, Number [ ];" iii, title; iv, copyright; v, vi, Publishers' Note; vii–ix, Editor's Preface; x, blank; xi–xv, contents; xvi, blank; xvii, list of illustrations; xviii, blank; xix–li, Introduction, signed B. T.; lii, blank; 1, half-title, "Henry D. Thoreau, Gleanings, or What Time has not reaped of my Journal;" 2, explanatory matter and poetical mottoes; 3–488, text; [489], blank; [490], printers' imprint "The Riverside Press, H. O. Houghton and Company, Cambridge, Massachusetts." Vol. XIV contains (pp. 347–459) an index to the whole Journal.

This edition is illustrated with photogravures from photographs by Herbert W. Gleason and with cuts in the text from rude drawings by Thoreau. The frontispiece to vol. I is a photogravure from the Rowse crayon. Vol. XIV contains at the end, just before the index, an indexed map of Concord compiled by Herbert W. Gleason, showing the localities mentioned by Thoreau in his Journal. Further particulars as to the format will be found in the description of the Manuscript Edition of Thoreau's Writings, pp. 52, 53.

Extracts from the Journal had previously been published under the titles Early Spring in Massachusetts, Summer, Winter, and Autumn, and also in Channing's Thoreau, the Poet-Naturalist (q. v., pp. 81, 82) and in Excursions, Riverside Edition. Selections from the present complete Journal, also, were printed in the Atlantic in January–May, 1905, in advance of book publication.

Thoreau's Journal in thirty-nine manuscript volumes was bequeathed by his sister Sophia to Mr. H. G. O. Blake, who, upon his death, left it in turn to Mr. E. Harlow Russell of Worcester. Mr. Russell arranged with the publishers to bring it out in extenso. The greatest care was taken to produce an accurate text, and the work of copying, comparing, and printing the Journal occupied three years and a half. As printed it is virtually complete and unabridged, the few omissions noted in the Editor's Preface being of an unimportant character. The earliest volumes of the original Journal were destroyed by Thoreau in writing the Week and Walden, but transcripts of unused passages were taken and preserved. This explains the half-title preceding text quoted in collation above. The manuscript Journal after the printing was sold by Mr. Russell and is now in the possession of Mr. Stephen H. Wakeman of New York.

The dates covered by the several volumes are: —

I. 1837–1846.
II. 1850–September 15, 1851.
III. September 16, 1851–April 30, 1852.
IV. May 1, 1852–February 27, 1853.
V. March 5–November 30, 1853.
VI. December 1, 1853–August 31, 1854.
VII. September 1, 1854–October 30, 1855.
VIII. November 1, 1855–August 15, 1856.
IX. August 16, 1856–August 7, 1857.
X. August 8, 1857–June 29, 1858.
XI. July 2, 1858–February 28, 1859.

COLLECTED WORKS

Riverside Edition.

10 vols., crown 8vo. With portraits and Introductory Notes. Boston: Houghton, Mifflin & Co. 1894 [1893].

Vol. I. A Week on the Concord and Merrimack Rivers.
Vol. II. Walden; or, Life in the Woods.
Vol. III. The Maine Woods.
Vol. IV. Cape Cod.
Vol. V. Early Spring in Massachusetts.
Vol. VI. Summer.
Vol. VII. Autumn.
Vol. VIII. Winter.
Vol. IX. Excursions.
Vol. X. Miscellanies.

The portraits are from the Rowse crayon, the Worcester daguerreotype, and the New Bedford ambrotype. The Introductory Notes are biographical and bibliographical in character, and were prepared by Mr. Horace E. Scudder. Volume X has a General Index to the Writings. This was the first regularly collected complete edition of Thoreau's writings, but for some years before its publication Thoreau's books had been issued in a uniform 12mo style bound in green cloth with gilt tops. Early Spring, Summer, Winter, and Autumn made their first appearance in this 12mo form.

The Familiar Letters, upon its appearance in 1894, was added to the Riverside Edition as an eleventh volume, being brought out in uniform style, though it lacked the half-title with the volume-number.

LARGE-PAPER EDITION.

10 vols., 8vo. Cambridge: Printed at the Riverside Press. 1894 [1893].

Printed from the plates of the Riverside Edition and issued simultaneously with it. Limited to 150 numbered copies. The Familiar Letters, published in 1894, was first issued in a Large-Paper Edition uniform with this edition of Thoreau's writings.

MANUSCRIPT EDITION.

20 vols., 8vo. With 3 portraits and 101 illustrations from photographs by Herbert W. Gleason. Boston: Houghton, Mifflin & Co. 1906.

VOL. I. A WEEK ON THE CONCORD AND MERRIMACK RIVERS.
VOL. II. WALDEN.
VOL. III. THE MAINE WOODS.
VOL. IV. CAPE COD, AND MISCELLANIES.
VOL. V. EXCURSIONS, AND POEMS.
VOL. VI. FAMILIAR LETTERS. Edited by F. B. Sanborn.
VOLS. VII–XX. JOURNAL. Edited by Bradford Torrey.

This edition is based on the Riverside Edition, with the addition of the complete Journal in fourteen volumes. (See pp. 44–50, Journal.) Besides the changes in arrangement indicated by the volume-titles given above, it is to be noted that the Biographical Sketch by Emerson is transferred from Excursions to the first volume; a General Index to the "Works," the first six volumes of the set, is added to Vol. VI; and the four volumes of Journal extracts edited by Mr. H. G. O. Blake — Early Spring in Massachusetts, Summer, Autumn, and Winter — are omitted as having been superseded by the publication of the complete Journal. The two papers entitled "May Days" and "Days and Nights in Concord," consisting of extracts from Thoreau's Journal, which are printed in the Riverside Edition of Excursions, are omitted; the collection of Poems is enlarged by the addition of a number of poems taken from Poems of Nature; and the Familiar Letters is revised and enlarged by the editor.

The fourteen volumes of the Journal contain many text cuts from rude sketches by Thoreau. The last volume has a "Map of Concord, Mass., showing Localities mentioned by Thoreau in his Journals, compiled by Herbert W. Gleason, 1906," with a two-page index to the same.

This edition was limited to six hundred numbered copies, and the first volume of each set contains a piece of Thoreau's autograph manuscript mounted and bound in before the frontispiece. These manuscripts vary in interest, some of them adding materially to the value of the sets. Some of the sets, issued in fine bindings, have two frontispieces to each volume, a carbon photograph of a flower and a colored photogravure. The edition was printed on a specially manufactured paper with "Thoreau" in the watermark.

WALDEN EDITION.

20 vols., 12mo. Boston: Houghton, Mifflin & Co. 1906.

Printed from the same plates as the Manuscript Edition, which it followed. Sold only by subscription for the entire set.

Reprinted by Mr. Sanborn in the Commonwealth, March 27 and April 3, 1863; Excursions, first edition, p. 109; Riverside Edition, p. 199; Walden Edition, p. 163.

In a letter dated Sept. 8, 1843, Emerson writes Thoreau: "I mean to send the 'Winter's Walk' to the printer to-morrow for The Dial. I had some hesitation about it, notwithstanding its faithful observation and its fine sketches of the pickerel-fisher and of the woodchopper, on account of mannerism, an old charge of mine, — as if, by attention, one could get the trick of the rhetoric. . . . By pretty free omissions, however, I have removed my principal objections." Some excised pages of this essay, including a poem, were printed in Mr. Sanborn's Personality of Thoreau, and afterward in Mr. Cooke's Introduction to The Dial.

VOL. IV, No. 3, Jan., 1844.

Graham's Magazine.

Thomas Carlyle and his Works, March, 1847, vol. 30, p. 145; April, 1847, vol. 30, p. 238.

Horace Greeley was Thoreau's agent in placing this article for publication. Thoreau had some difficulty in getting his pay for it, but Greeley finally succeeded in collecting it for him by drawing on Graham for $75. See Sanborn's Life of Thoreau, pp. 218–225.

Reprinted in A Yankee in Canada, etc., p. 211; in Miscellanies, Riverside Edition, p. 81; and in Cape Cod, and Miscellanies, Walden Edition, p. 316.

The Liberator.

Wendell Phillips before the Concord Lyceum, March 28, 1845. Letter dated March 12, 1845, not signed.

Reprinted in A Yankee in Canada, etc., p. 274; in Miscellanies, Riverside Edition, p. 76; and in Cape Cod, and Miscellanies, Walden Edition, p. 311.

Slavery in Massachusetts, July 21, 1854. An Address delivered at the Anti-Slavery Celebration at Framingham, July 4th, 1854.

Made up largely from entries made in Thoreau's Journal at the time of the rendition of Sims in 1851 and during the discussion of the Anthony Burns affair in May and June, 1854.

Reprinted in A Yankee in Canada, etc., p. 97; in Miscellanies, p. 171; and in Cape Cod, and Miscellanies, p. 388.

[The Last Days of John Brown], July 27, 1860. In a report of the Memorial Celebration at North Elba, N. Y., July 4, 1860. Thoreau's address was read by the secretary.

Written almost entirely in the Journal at the time of John Brown's trial and execution.

Reprinted in A Yankee in Canada, etc., p. 278; in Miscellanies, Riverside Edition, p. 237; and in Cape Cod, and Miscellanies, Walden Edition, p. 441.

No. iii. Boating on the Lakes, p. 132 (Sept.).
No. iv. The Ascent of Ktaadn, p. 177 (Oct.).
No. v. The Return Journey, p. 216 (Nov.).

This series was sold for Thoreau to Mr. Sartain, the proprietor of the Union Magazine, by Horace Greeley, who had previously bought it himself for $25, with the idea of using it in the Tribune. Sartain gave him $75 for it, upon which he handed over an additional $25 to the author. See Sanborn's Thoreau, pp. 225–227.

The Plains of Nanset [sic], July, vol. 6, p. 59.
The Beach, Aug., vol. 6, p. 157.

The notice To be Continued is appended to the August installment, but the series was discontinued, and nothing more of Cape Cod appeared during Thoreau's lifetime. Mr. Sanborn says it "became the subject of controversy [between author and editor] first as to price, and then as to its tone towards the people of that region." The serial publication of the "Excursion to Canada" was also terminated abruptly, after only three chapters out of the five which the author wrote had been published. The withdrawal of the remaining chapters was on account of a disagreement between the author and the editor of Putnam's, Mr. George William Curtis, who, as Thoreau wrote his friend Blake, required the liberty to omit the "heresies" without consulting the author, — an attitude which Mr. Greeley defended on the ground that the articles were unsigned and therefore in a sense editorial. According to Mr. Sanborn it was as a result of a correspondence with Horace Greeley that the Canada and Cape Cod papers were published in Putnam's Magazine. It is evident from the printed correspondence that he negotiated the sale of the "Excursion to Canada" for Thoreau; as to the "Cape Cod," we have no explicit information.

The Canada papers were reprinted in A Yankee in Canada, etc., pp. 3–63; and in Excursions, Riverside Edition, pp. 3–84; Walden Edition, pp. 3–68. The Cape Cod chapters were reprinted in the volume entitled Cape Cod, pp. 1–71; Riverside Edition, pp. 1–91; Walden Edition, pp. 3–78.

The Atlantic Monthly.

Chesuncook, vol. 2, 1858. I, p. 1 (June); II, p. 224 (July); III, p. 305 (Aug.).

The July installment contains the passage in praise of the pine from which the final sentence, "It is as immortal as I am, and perchance will go to as high a heaven, there to tower above me still," was struck out by the editor, James Russell Lowell. It will be remembered that this editorial liberty offended Thoreau, who never again offered anything to the Atlantic, though the three succeeding papers were contributed to the magazine by him at the solicitation of Mr. Fields, who had then assumed the editorship.

Reprinted in The Maine Woods, first edition, p. 85; Riverside Edition, p. 112; Walden Edition, p. 93.

Walking, vol. 9, p. 657 (June, 1862).

Drawn largely from the journals for 1851–58.

Reprinted in Excursions, first edition, p. 215; Riverside Edition, p. 305; Walden Edition, p. 249.

Wild Apples, vol. 10, p. 513 (Nov., 1862).

Much of this appears scattered through the Journal.

Reprinted in Excursions, first edition, p. 266; Riverside Edition, p. 356; Walden Edition, p. 290.

These last three articles, Mr. Sanborn informs the compiler, were corrected in proof at least in part by Thoreau during his last illness.

Life without Principle, vol. 12, p. 484 (Oct., 1863).

Largely composed of passages from the Journal written between 1850 and 1855.

Reprinted in A Yankee in Canada, etc., p. 248; Miscellanies, Riverside Edition, p. 253; and Cape Cod, and Miscellanies, Walden Edition, p. 455.

NIGHT AND MOONLIGHT, vol. 12, p. 579 (Nov., 1863).

Much of this essay appears in the earlier part of the Journal (1841–54). It is probably an abridged form of a longer essay which Thoreau delivered as a lecture in 1854.

Reprinted in Excursions, first edition, p. 307; Riverside Edition, p. 397; Walden Edition, p. 323.

A PLEA FOR CAPTAIN JOHN BROWN (read to the citizens of Concord, Mass., Sunday evening, Oct. 30, 1859), p. 16.

Written almost entirely in the Journal during the days immediately following John Brown's raid.

Reprinted in A Yankee in Canada, etc., p. 152; in Miscellanies, Riverside Edition, p. 197; and in Cape Cod, and Miscellanies, Walden Edition, p. 409.

The address was also delivered in Boston as one of the Fraternity course of lectures, Nov. 1, 1859, and was reported in the Atlas and Daily Bee and other Boston papers for Nov. 2, but was not printed in full until the appearance of Mr. Redpath's book. (See also pp. 118, 119.)

REMARKS AT CONCORD ON THE DAY OF THE EXECUTION OF JOHN BROWN (Dec. 2, 1859), p. 439.

A few sentences of this short address appear in the Journal.

Reprinted under the title of "After the Death of John Brown" in Miscellanies, Riverside Edition, p. 249; and in Cape Cod, and Miscellanies, p. 451.

THE NEW-YORK DAILY TRIBUNE.

THE SUCCESSION OF FOREST TREES, Oct. 6, 1860.

An address read before the Middlesex Agricultural Society at Concord, Sept. 20, 1860. Drawn to some extent from the author's journal (1852–60). An investigation into the planting and growth of wood-lots occupied a large part of Thoreau's time during the autumn of 1860. (See Journal.)

Reprinted in Excursions, first edition, p. 135; Riverside Edition, p. 225; Walden Edition, p. 184. See also next two items.

TRANSACTIONS OF THE MIDDLESEX AGRICULTURAL SOCIETY FOR THE YEAR 1860. Concord: Benjamin Tolman, Printer. 1860.

AN ADDRESS ON THE SUCCESSION OF FOREST TREES, p. 12.

The same address as the foregoing.

"At 2 o'clock, P. M., a procession was formed at the Society's hall, under the efficient direction of N. Henry Warren, Chief Marshal, and proceeded, under the escort of Gilmore's Band, to the Town Hall, where the meeting was called to order by the President, who, after a few remarks, introduced to the audience Mr. Henry D. Thoreau, who delivered a fine address.

"At the close of the brief address of Mr. Thoreau, Gov. Boutwell, President of the Society, congratulated the audience that they had heard an address so plain and practical, and at the same time showing such close observation, and careful study of natural phenomena." — Pages 8 and 9, in report of the 66th Exhibition of the Society, held at Concord, Sept. 20, 1860.

THE FUNERAL BELL (verse), July 3, 1863.

Reprinted in Poems of Nature, p. 62; and in Excursions, and Poems, Walden Edition, p. 405.

TRAVELLING (verse), July 24, 1863.

These lines have not been reprinted in this form. They are as follows: —

If e'er our minds are ill at ease,
It is in vain to cross the seas;
Or when the fates do prove unkind,
To leave our native land behind;
The ship becalmed at length stands still,
The steed will rest beneath the hill;
But swiftly still our fortunes pace
To find us out in every place.

With the exception of the first two lines, this appears (with verbal alterations) in the Week, as a part of the poem beginning "Though all the fates should prove unkind." The word "out" in the last line was misprinted as "rest" in the Commonwealth.

GREECE (verse), July 24, 1863.

Reprinted in Poems of Nature, p. 61; and in Excursions, and Poems, p. 404. The last four lines appear in the Week.

This letter appears not to have been published elsewhere.

THE CRITIC.

THOREAU'S UNPUBLISHED POETRY, by F. B. Sanborn, March 26, 1881, vol. 1, p. 75.

Omnipresence, 4 lines.
Inspiration, 4 lines.
Prayer, 10 lines.
Mission, 4 lines.
Delay, 4 lines.
The Vireo, 4 lines.

From a sheet found in Thoreau's copy of The Dial. "Prayer" had appeared in The Dial, vol. 3, p. 79 (see p. 65). "The Vireo" was included in the article entitled "Natural History of Massachusetts," contributed to The Dial for July, 1842. Besides its several appearances in that article, it was reprinted in Poems of Nature, p. 72.

The other four quatrains were reprinted in Miscellanies, Riverside Edition, pp. 363, 364; and in Excursions, and Poems, Walden Edition, pp. 417, 418.

CHANNING, WILLIAM ELLERY.

Thoreau, the Poet-Naturalist. With Memorial Verses.
Boston: Roberts Bros. 1873.
16mo, pp. xii, 357.

Part of it was originally published anonymously by Mr. F. B. Sanborn in the Boston Commonwealth in eight installments, the first two under the title of Henry D. Thoreau, Dec. 25, 1863, and Jan. 1, 1864, the others under the title of Reminiscences of Henry D. Thoreau, Part Second and Part Third, Jan. 15, 22, and 29, and Feb. 5, 12, and 19, 1864. It contains many and copious extracts from Thoreau's unpublished Journal. Pages 120–186 were, as explained by Mr. Sanborn in his Introduction to the edition of 1902, added by the author for the purpose of enlarging the volume. They were taken in bulk from an old manuscript written for quite a different purpose, containing a medley of passages from the journals of Emerson and Thoreau, together with scraps of recorded conversations and bits written by Channing himself, etc., etc., all without anything to indicate what was to be ascribed to each author. This and all the circumstances attending the writing and publication of the book are interestingly recounted by Mr. Sanborn in the Introduction referred to. Mr. Channing's quotations of Thoreau's Journal are very inaccurate. Fifteen hundred copies were printed.

The Same. New Edition, enlarged. Edited by F. B. Sanborn. Boston: Charles E. Goodspeed. 1902.

Large crown 8vo, pp. xx, 397. With portrait of the author.

This edition was based upon a copy of the earlier edition containing Channing's revision and notes. The editor also inserted here and there passages from "the original sketch," made some additions to the "Memorial Poems," indicated the names of the interlocutors in the "Walks and Talks," and supplied a few additional passages from Thoreau's journals and papers.

Two hundred and fifty copies of this edition, with engraved portraits of Channing and Thoreau and four etchings by Sidney L. Smith, were printed on French hand-made paper by D. B. Updike, The Merrymount Press, Boston, in November, 1902.

BIBLIOGRAPHIES

THE only bibliographies of Thoreau of any interest or importance to the student or the collector are those by Dr. Samuel A. Jones. Thoreau's books are enumerated in many works on American literature, and several comprehensive American bibliographies give lists of his first editions, but it seems unnecessary to make any detailed mention of these lists here. Dr. Jones's first bibliography was entitled "A Contribution toward a Bibliography of Thoreau." It appeared in The Unitarian for March, 1890 (vol. 5, pp. 126–128), and was reprinted in Thoreau: A Glimpse (1890), and in the volume of Thoreau's Thoughts compiled by H. G. O. Blake (Boston, 1890), where it occupies pages 125–146. For practical purposes it was of course superseded by his more complete book compiled for the Rowfant Club and printed in 1894, — which, however, is out of the reach of most students on account of the small size of the edition, — and by the bibliography which Mr. John P. Anderson of the British Museum furnished for the "Great Writers" edition of Salt's Life of Thoreau (1896). The latter seems to have been taken almost entirely from Dr. Jones's book, though a very few new items were added. The earlier edition (1890) of Salt's Life also contained an eight-page bibliography, for which credit was given to Dr. Jones in the preface. The title and collation of the Rowfant Club volume are as follows: —

[Motto] | BIBLIOGRAPHY | OF HENRY DAVID | THOREAU | With an Outline | of his Life | [Device] | Compiled and Chrono- | logically arranged by | Samuel Arthur Jones | Printed for the Rowfant | Club of Cleveland by the | De Vinne Press of New York | MDCCCXCIV.

Crown 8vo, pp. 80. With Portrait. Collation: [i], half-title and number; 1, title; 2, copyright; 3, motto; 4, blank; 5, errata; 6, blank; 7, contents; 8, blank; 9–25, Chronology of Thoreau's Life; 26–31, Contributions to the Dial; 32–36, Contributions to Other Magazines, 1843–62; 37–54, Works; 55–57, The Order of Publication, Contents, and Arrangement of the Two Editions [i. e. original and Riverside editions]; 58, 59, Biographical, 1862–90; 60–67, Ana, 1847–93; 68–76, Reviews, Criticisms, etc., 1849–94; 77, 78, Years and Works; 79, 80, Index of Writers.

Ninety copies printed. The portrait is a photograph of Mr. H. G. O. Blake's Maxham daguerreotype not reversed.

ADVERTISEMENT OF CONCORD LYCEUM.

Concord Freeman, February 10.

The list of lecturers includes Thoreau for February 8. This and the preceding advertisement, as well as the following report, are in the Hosmer collection in Concord. The advertisements doubtless also appeared in other numbers of the Freeman.

REPORT OF THOREAU'S LECTURE IN CONCORD LYCEUM, February 8, 1843.

Concord Freeman, February 10.

The lecture was on Sir Walter Raleigh, and was probably the essay printed for the Bibliophile Society in 1905 from the manuscript owned by Mr. W. K. Bixby. See pp. 40, 41.

H. D. Thoreau's Book. [George Ripley.]

New York Tribune, June 13; also in the New York Weekly Tribune for June 16, 1849.

Reprinted in S. A. Jones's Pertaining to Thoreau, 1901. The reviewer praises the literary quality of the Week, but condemns the author's pantheism.

Notice of A Week on the Concord and Merrimack Rivers.

Godey's Lady's Book, September, vol. 39, p. 223.

This notice is worth quoting in full:—

"Those who have read 'Margaret Smith's Journal,' will be at no loss in settling the authorship of this clever and interesting work. Mr. Whittier touches all his themes with the true poet's wand; all show forms of beauty and gleams of light that, like the sunbeams on the far-off mountain, make the cold and rugged landscape appear soft and charming. It is just the book to read in the idleness of summer, when wishing to enjoy the pleasures of journeying, without the inconvenience which the actual packing up and going off in hot steamboats and dusty cars occasion. Read it, and see."

TOWN AND RURAL HUMBUGS.
Knickerbocker Magazine, March, vol. 45, pp. 235–241.
A comparison and contrast of Walden with P. T. Barnum's Autobiography. Thoreau is incidentally called a rural humbug, while Barnum is characterized as a town humbug. The review is favorable to Thoreau in the main, however, in spite of the absurdity of associating him with Barnum. Reprinted in S. A. Jones's Pertaining to Thoreau, 1901.

1856

REVIEW OF WALDEN. [Marian Evans (afterwards known as George Eliot).]
Westminster Review, January, vol. 65 (9 N. S.), pp. 302, 303.
This review has apparently never been reprinted, and it is worth quoting in full: —

"In a volume called Walden; or, Life in the Woods, published last year, but quite interesting enough to make it worth while for us to break our rule by a retrospective notice — we have a bit of pure American life (not the 'go a-head' species, but its opposite pole), animated by that energetic, yet calm spirit of innovation, that practical as well as theoretic independence of formulæ, which is peculiar to some of the finer American minds. The writer tells us how he chose, for some years, to be a stoic of the woods; how he built his house; how he earned the necessaries of his simple life by cultivating a bit of ground. He tells his system of diet, his studies, his reflections, and his observations of natural phenomena. These last are not only made by a keen eye, but have their interest enhanced by passing through the medium of a deep poetic sensibility; and, indeed, we feel throughout the book the presence of a refined as well as a hardy mind. People — very wise in their own eyes — who would have every man's life ordered according to a particular pattern, and who are intolerant of every existence the utility of which is not palpable to them, may pooh-pooh Mr. Thoreau and this episode in his history, as unpractical and dreamy. Instead of contesting their opinion ourselves, we will let Mr. Thoreau speak for himself. There is plenty of sturdy sense mingled with his unworldliness."

Then follow extracts, the last of which is prefaced by the words, "We can only afford one more extract, which, to our minds, has great beauty." This is the passage in Chapter IV beginning "I did not read books the first summer; I hoed beans."

AN AMERICAN DIOGENES.

Chambers's Journal, November 21, vol. 8, pp. 330–332.

A review of Walden, cribbed in part from the Knickerbocker article entitled "Town and Rural Humbugs," from which, besides the absurd comparison with P. T. Barnum, the opening sentences with their reference to Diogenes are borrowed. Reprinted in S. A. Jones's Pertaining to Thoreau, 1901.

1882

HENRY D. THOREAU. John Burroughs.
Century Magazine, July, vol. 2, pp. 368–379.
Heading the article is a woodcut of Thoreau, which the motto describes as "from his last portrait, a tintype, taken by Critcherson, of Worcester, Mass., in 1861." The original of the cut is very evidently one of the daguerreotypes taken by Maxham of Worcester in 1856, which were not his last portraits, and the tintype must have been taken from the daguerreotype, not directly from the sitter.

"The author of this article, who prefers to leave it unsigned, was an intimate personal friend of the late Miss Sophia E. Thoreau, the sister of Henry D. Thoreau. The two friends often visited each other. Their acquaintance and friendship began when Miss Thoreau was thirty-two years of age, and continued unbroken until her death in 1876. The author of the article during this period made frequent visits to the Thoreau home in Concord, none of them very brief, and many of several weeks' duration, and participated with absolute freedom in the family life." — Editor's Note.

AUCTION PRICES

AUCTION PRICES

For this record of the sales of Thoreau's books and manuscripts at auction the reader is indebted to the annual publication "American Book-Prices Current," from which it has been gathered with the permission of the compiler, Mr. Luther S. Livingston. Mr. Livingston has also kindly supplied the information concerning the sales for 1908 in advance of the publication of the volume for the current year. The name of the sale, where given, generally indicates the original owner of the lot, but not invariably, since odd lots are not infrequently sold in connection with the sales of libraries and collections. Where the word "sale" is omitted the name is that of the auctioneer.

Items bringing less than $3.00 are not recorded in "American Book-Prices Current."

B

ADDENDA

Note on

A Week on the Concord and Merrimack Rivers. New and Revised Edition. 1868.

This edition shows many emendations of a minor sort, probably taken from an annotated copy of the first edition left by Thoreau among his effects. Most of the alterations — additions, deletions, and substitutions — are clearly in the way of improvement, but one change it is not so easy to account for. The lines in "Saturday" which refer to Channing began in the first edition, —

> "On Ponkawtasset, since, with such delay,
> Down this still stream we took our meadowy way,
> A poet wise has settled, whose fine ray
> Doth faintly shine on Concord's twilight day."

In the second edition this stanza reads, —

> "On Ponkawtasset, since, we took our way,
> Down this still stream to far Billericay,
> A poet wise has settled, whose fine ray
> Doth often shine on Concord's twilight day."

The commas after "since" and "way" are clearly superfluous, and may be set down as due to a careless marking of the copy, which left the original punctuation of the line while it altered the words and the syntax. The difficulty is with the words, for the lines as thus altered seem no improvement over those of the first edition. They are, in fact, a partial return to a still earlier reading. Mr. Sanborn informs the writer that a set of proof-sheets of the first edition of the Week, with corrections by Thoreau, which has recently passed through his hands, shows that the lines as originally set up read as follows: —

> "On Ponkawtasset, since we took our way
> Down this fair stream toward neighboring Billeric*a*,
> A poet wise has settled, whose fine ray
> Doth twinkle oft on Concord's twilight day."

This was corrected by the author to read as it appears in the first edition.
